"Little Free Library" Open for Business

Archer and Teagan Bowman were the first to visit the Little Free Library in Kennedy after it opened late last week. The library was designed and built by Ed Lehrke's senior high shop class at Kittson Central. The project manager was senior student Madison Muir. The materials were donated by the Kennedy Community Center, with a discount provided by Valley Building Center of Drayton. Over the next few months, local artists will add signage and a bit of art work. But you don't have to wait until they're done to use the library. At any time, feel free to "take a book or leave a book."

A Fourth Art Grant Comes to Kennedy!

The city of Kennedy is benefitting from a fourth Northwest Minnesota Arts Council grant for public art. This time it was the Kennedy Community Center that applied for and received the Arts Legacy Grant. Members of Artists Unlimited were then commissioned to paint a mural on the north side of Greg Snares building, located directly north of the city office and best seen from the alley behind the community center. Work began on the mural Memorial Day weekend and will be completed before September.

Other Arts Legacy Grant projects that can be seen in Kennedy include a mural painted by area artist Beau Bakken, in 2014, on the south and west sides of the old Petersburg Chevrolet building. A photo exhibit displayed primarily in the Kennedy center, curated by Kathryn Rynning in 2014. And, a mural on the south wall of Greg Snare's building, painted in 2015 by Kennedy native Connie Nelson.

This activity was funded, in part, by a grant from the Northwest Minnesota Arts Council and the Minnesota arts and cultural heritage funds as appropriated by the Minnesota State Legislature with money from the vote of the people of Minnesota on November 4, 2008.
